Wealthy landowner seeks court protection from niece

■ Prosecutor will also file charges in sordid case of alleged theft and abuse

By KELLY NIX

LILLIAN KING, the 97-year-old woman who was removed from her Pacific Grove mansion last year because she was living in squalid conditions, has been granted a restraining order against her grand niece who was taking care of her after alleging the woman stole more than $1 million in cash, sold precious gold and silver coins, and put her life in danger.

Monterey County Deputy District Attorney Lisa Poll also said elder abuse charges will be filed against Hurley soon.

Court documents filed May 10 reveal a chilling and graphic account of King's alleged treatment by her grand niece, Cindy Hurley, 47, who up until early April had been taking care of the elderly woman.

"I felt desperately ill, thought I was dying and summoned Cindy for aid," King said in a May 5 declaration. "I asked her to comfort me by getting me a hot drink and staying with me. Cindy responded by ignoring my request, yelled a profanity at me and walked away, leaving me in the house all alone."

Hurley emptied a safe deposit box and bank accounts, "which at one time contained in excess of $1 million dollars," and was responsible for taking hundreds of thousands of dollars in gold and silver coins, jewelry and collectibles, including a topaz piece and a diamond pin belonging to King's mother, King said.

"I learned that Cindy and 'friends' of Cindy's had attempted to and did, in fact, sell some gold coins," according to King. "I did not give Cindy or any of her friends my permission or consent to sell my gold coins. In fact, Cindy has assured me she has not sold any of my gold coins."

Under the terms of the restraining order, issued Wednesday by Judge Robert O'Farrell, Hurley must stay at least 500 yards from King and return all of King's personal property.

State inquiry could delay C.V. incorporation vote

■ Businesses say they want no part of proposed town

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors unanimously approved an alimony deal this week which would allow the Town of Carmel Valley to pay off 10 years of lost county revenues in 16 years. But hopes for a November election could quickly fade as opponents of incorporation announced they are willing to spend at least $25,000 to fund a state review scrutinizing the economic viability of the proposed city. The study would delay a public vote on the issue until at least next June.

Before the meeting, incorporation proponents suffered another blow. In a letter to the Local Agency Formation Commission, land use attorney Tony Lombardo announced that seven of his prominent clients — the Barnyard and Carmel Rancho shopping centers, Rancho Cañada Golf Club and Quail Lodge Resort — do not wish to be included in the incorporation. And he accused LAFCO of rushing the incorporation issue to a vote for the benefit of a "special interest group."

Incorporation clears a big hurdle

The revenue neutrality agreement between Monterey County officials and proponents of Carmel Valley's incorporation was reached after 18 months of negotiations. Former 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman — who represented proponents in negotiating the alimony deal — urged supervisors to endorse it.

"The agreement before you is fair," Strasser Kauffman insisted. "It meets the letter and spirit of the law. It allows the city to get off to a sound financial start and provides the county with a soft landing."

Incorporation opponent Melvin Steckler disagreed, calling the deal a "gift" to proponents.

"It could have been for 20 years," Steckler countered. "It could have been for 30 years. Is this agreement really revenue neutral?"

According to a Monterey County staff report released May 18, the proposed Town of Carmel Valley would pay the county a total of $15,919,280 in alimony payments. A state law requires prospective cities to compensate county governments for revenues lost as a result of incorporation.

As part of the agreement, the town would make no revenue neutrality payments for the first two years of its operation. At the end of its third year, it would be required to make a payment of $827,406. In its fourth year, the payment would drop to $709,875 before slowly escalating each year until the 15th year, when a bill for $1,656,571 would be due.

The town would conclude the agreement with a payment to the county of $120,377 in its 16th year of operation.

Council: Run flag up a pole

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE CITY of Carmel-by-the-Sea should wave its own flag, council members and the mayor decided May 9 when they voted to spend $700 on a "prototype."

The proposed design features the city seal — which depicts the Mission — on a blue background.

"We get so many requests for the city flag and have never had one," Mayor Sue McCloud explained.

"What's the point?" councilman Erik Bethel asked.

"A city flag promotes civic pride and can be used as a marketing tool when presented at events outside of Carmel-by-the-Sea," city administrator Rich Guillen wrote in his staff report for the council. It would hang on poles with the national and state flags throughout Carmel and would be provided to the League of California Cities, which requests cities supply flags to hang at league conventions.

"And we would give them away to dignitaries," Guillen said.

Councilwoman Paula Hazdovac said the flag "looks fine," and the council approved it.

Guillen said additional costs will depend on how many flags the city orders.

It's not just for uniforms and wall plaques anymore. The Carmel City Council voted May 9 to order flags bearing the city seal.

ILLNESS FORCES PACIFIC GROVE MAYOR TO RESIGN

By KELLY NIX

TO FOCUS on his battle with cancer, Pacific Grove Mayor Jim Costello will resign, he announced Thursday.

Costello, 62, revealed in April he had a rare form of lymphoma. The condition is tiring and has forced Costello to leave early from a couple of city council meetings.

"I just decided it was time for me to just worry about myself," Costello said. "I really find the meetings are a little more than I can handle."

Costello, a teacher at Pacific Grove Middle School, will attend his last city council meeting June 7 and will officially resign his post on June 9, the same day he retires.

Public restroom put on hold but restaurant remodel can go ahead

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WHEN RESTAURATEUR David Fink offered to build a public restroom in Piccadilly Park, planners hailed it as a great idea, but everyone apparently forgot to think about where the water would come from.

One mile south of Ocean Ave. exit Hwy 1 at Carmel Valley Rd; Right on Carmel Rancho Blvd.; right on Carmel Rancho Lane.

Without a clear idea who would provide the precious H₂O, the Carmel Planning Commission last week set the proposed bathroom aside but approved Fink's remodel plans for the old Toots Lagoon building adjacent to the park. And on May 22, the historic resources board did the same.

For years, the city required the restaurant operating in that building to make its restroom available to the public through a side door. Fink's offer to build a new one in the park, "solves ongoing problems related to access, maintenance, costs and interference between restaurant patrons and public users of the restroom," assistant planner Nathan Schmidt wrote in his report to the commission.

City administrator Rich Guillen authorized the use of the land, and the city agreed to cover maintenance and upkeep after the restroom is completed.

"When we came up with this, there was a 'Yippee!'," Fink said at the May 10 hearing. "We are going to take on the cost to build it; we assumed the water would come from the city."

But in order to allocate the water needed for the bathroom, the planning commission would have to hold a public hearing and make a recommendation to the city council, which would decide whether the project deserves some of the little water held in reserve, according to principal planner Brian Roseth.

Alternatively, Fink could give up three seats in his restaurant to provide enough water, or he could continue to keep the inside restroom open. "We paid a lot of money for the building, and a restaurant seat is worth a lot," he responded. One seat represents annual revenues of $25,000 to $30,000, so losing three would be a significant blow to profit.

"We all agree it's a great idea," Roseth said May 10 of Fink's proposal. "However, the problem of water is not going to go away."

At the historic resources board meeting May 22, Fink said he has set aside the money for the restroom and hopes to work with the city to find the water for it.

"At Bouchée and L'Auberge, guests ask to use our bathrooms every day of the week," said Fink, who owns those upscale restaurants. "It's a great park, and well used. We would love to provide a bathroom that would be accessible."

"I can't think of anything that will make the business district more user friendly than another bathroom," HRB member Paul Coss commented.

Carmel's Little Italy

Fink said his remodel plans will improve an "ugly building." He plans to open his casual Italian restaurant next to the park in July, which will make it the third Mediterranean eatery to open on a single block. "I think the neighbors are starting to call the street Little Italy now, because of so many Italian restaurants, but we'll be different," Fink told the historic resources board Monday afternoon.

He agreed to continue allowing public access to the restaurant's bathroom until the water issue is resolved and he can build a new one in the park. The remainder of his application calls for:

- new pavers in the public right of way to match those in the park;
- an arched entryway, and new windows and doors;
- Carmel stone applied to the base of the front of the building; and
- removal of the existing eave and mural.

He also sought permission for a custom-designed steel and glass awning along the entire front elevation, but Schmidt determined it would "appear industrial and unnatural," and suggested Fink work with the city's staff to develop another design.

Planning commissioners voted 4-0 (Julie Culver was absent) in favor May 10, and commissioner Ken Talmage also suggested the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club be asked to weigh in on any building proposed for Piccadilly Park, since it financed and oversaw the park's overhaul several years ago.

While the building itself is not historic, the proposal involves changes to the "downtown conservation district," so the HRB also had to review the plans to ensure they would not negatively affect any historic buildings.

Following a brief tangential discussion between Fink and HRB member Erling Lagerholm regarding whether the new restaurant will serve grappa (it will), the board voted with little discussion to approve the project already OK'd by the planning commission.

Veteran to receive Purple Heart — six decades late

■ Frank Casas to be honored at Memorial Day ceremony

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A WORLD WAR II veteran who was shot and suffered a broken leg in combat will finally receive the Purple Heart he earned in 1945. At a Memorial Day ceremony in downtown Carmel hosted by American Legion Post 512 and attended by local dignitaries, Casas will be honored in a service set to begin at 11 a.m. in Devendorf Park.

Retired U.S. Army Gen. Bill Mullen will present the medal to Casas, who was born in Los Angeles on March 4, 1916, spent his childhood in Mexico City, Mexico, and returned to attend school and raise a family in Southern California. He now lives with his daughter on San Luis Street in Carmel Woods.

According to his family, Casas first tried to sign up with the U.S. Marine Corps but was turned away because he was married with two small children, so in 1944, he and two neighborhood friends enlisted in the Army. Assigned to the 182nd Infantry in the Philippine Islands, Casas was fighting in the hills above Cebu City when enemy soldiers ambushed his squad. He suffered rifle fire and a compound fracture in his leg, and spent 63 days in the 44th General Hospital near Tacloban before returning to active duty in June 1945.

Casas received the Good Conduct Medal, the Victory Medal, the Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal and the Philippine Liberation Medal.

While in the hospital, Casas was also handed a Purple Heart for wounds received in combat, but his military records never included the recognition, according to his family. Later, the omission complicated his medical care, because Purple Heart recipients receive priority in Veterans Administration hospitals.

"They said he could have bought his medal off the Internet," according to Casas' daughter Olivia, who helped prove he had not.

Eddie Humada of the Monterey County Military and Veterans Affairs Office sent a letter to Lt. Col. William Johnson, chief of the Army's military awards branch, on Casas' behalf, and in January, the Army confirmed Casas' injuries had indeed earned him the Purple Heart. The office issued general orders announcing the award and an engraved medal set, and assured his official military personnel file will be updated.

"It is an honor to issue this symbol in recognition of Mr. Casas' faithful and dedicated service to our nation during a time of great need," Johnson's letter concluded.

Michael Bloom, past commander of American Legion Post 512, called the award "a long time in coming," and said he's grateful Casas will finally receive the "proper recognition he so rightly deserves after all these 61 years."

Police & Sheriff's Log

Home not burglarized — just messy

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department, the Carmel Fire Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Brownfield.

THURSDAY, MAY 11

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a medical emergency on San Antonio Avenue. Firefighters assisted ambulance personnel with patient assessment, oxygen administration, monitor hookup, diagnostics, packaging and gathering information on an elderly female who was experiencing a possible CVA. The patient was transported to CHOMP by ambulance.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a medical emergency on Lincoln Street. At scene, firefighters helped the ambulance crew with an elderly male with low blood pressure. The patient was transported to CHOMP.

Pebble Beach: Resident of a Costado Place address called to report the wife of her guest was banging on the doors and windows of the house, demanding her husband come out.

Pebble Beach: A friend of the resident on Costado Road called requesting a welfare check on the elderly female. Contacted the resident and had her transported to CHOMP.

Carmel area: Reporting party reported that another person came into her office in the Barnyard and yelled at her and her staff. The incident was documented.

FRIDAY, MAY 12

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Reporting party called to report a voluntary repossession of a vehicle on Dolores Street. The vehicle was entered into SVS.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject reported that two loose dogs were trying to attack her dog through the front window of her house on Palou. The owner and dog-sitter of the loose dogs were contacted and related that the dogs were let out by mistake. Reporting party stated she has had problems before with the same dogs; however, she declined to press charges. Information forwarded to animal control officer.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A male suspect, age 39, was stopped and arrested at Dolores and Sixth for driving under the influence.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Ambulance responded to a request for mutual aid from Westmed ambulance to a medical emergency on Holman Highway. An elderly female, experiencing a fever and possible pneumonia, was transported to CHOMP.

SATURDAY, MAY 13

Fire Belles deliver $40K from sales of risqué calendar

By MARY BROWNFIELD

FULLY CLAD and hoisting Champagne-filled flutes, the Carmel Fire Belles delivered $40,000 to the mayor and the fire chief Tuesday night to help fix the firehouse.

The handover represented more than a transfer of funds from a nonprofit to a beneficiary. Two years ago, the city said it would not accept the nude calendar cash for fear of sexual harassment lawsuits.

But at a Films in the Forest showing of the movie that motivated the women to bare almost all, Mary Pankonin (Ms. May) and Patty Ross (Ms. November) — flanked by almost every other month — foisted an oversized check on Mayor Sue McCloud and fire chief Andrew Miller. Council members Paula Hazdovac and Gerard Rose also stood by.

"Before I get down to my body stocking, I would like let Chief Miller say how the money will be used," McCloud said, drawing chortles from the audience.

"I don't know many communities that get so personally involved," Miller commented, which also elicited giggles. The cash will help pay for the new kitchen and other amenities in the recently retrofitted firehouse set to reopen next month.

McCloud decided the financial benefits outweighed the legal fears voiced by city administrator Rich Guillen and city attorney Don Freeman, who in summer 2004 warned the calendar girls off shooting photos in the fire station, using Carmel-by-the-Sea's name or implying the city endorsed their project.

Already well into it, the women, including Carmel Valley

Fire Chief Sidney Reade, did not back down, and the controversy helped fuel calendar sales. The money, which according to the officially named Friends of Carmel Firehouse, Inc. bylaws must be used for the station, grew in an interest-bearing account at Wells Fargo. The calendar sold for $20.

While the movie motivated Pankonin and Ross, "it was the men and women of the fire department who inspired us to take our clothes off," Ross said Tuesday night.

The Belles were, in order by month: Susan Draper, Barbara Wilson, Deborah Rothhouse, Charlene Cooper, Mary Pankonin, Diane Flanders, Laurel Whorf, Jan Wagstaff, Sidney Reade, Jill Jackson, Patty Ross and Paula Weber.

"Now we can put this saga to bed — hooray!" Pankonin told The Pine Cone Wednesday.

SCHOOL BOARD CONFRONTS
SHARPLY HIGHER COSTS
FOR BOND PROJECTS

By MARY BROWNFIELD

REELING FROM sticker shock from rising cost estimates for proposed construction projects — many of which will be paid for with $21.5 million in bonds voters approved last year — trustees of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education unanimously voted to approve a bid for one of the most expensive Monday night. DWR Construction will receive $2.48 million to rip out the old pools at Carmel High School and install a new one.

DWR's bid came in $500,000 higher than expected but well below competitors Tombleson and DMC, which bid $4,279,877 and $4,791,254, respectively.

"We were shocked at the Tombleson and DMC numbers being as high as they were," architect Henry Ruhnke told the board May 22.

With an additional 25 percent to cover overruns and "soft costs," as well as a $22,865 pool cover and $23,000 to ship the $204,050 pool from the midwest, Ruhnke estimated the total bill would be $3.38 million.

The board originally planned to spend $2.3 million, and the Friends of Carmel Aquatics, the major fundraising force behind the pool project, pledged its support. So far, the group has about $150,000 in the bank and plans to bring in another $170,000 by selling tiles.

Commission: Proposed home's basement looks too comfy

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WITH THE aged Hitchcock House now only a memory, developer John Mandurrage is ready to build something new on his Mission Street parcel. But he can't start yet, the Carmel Planning Commission told him May 10. Concerned about part of a basement that could be used as living space, commissioners voted 4-0 to delay a decision on plans for a large house where Mandurrage once envisioned a 13-unit senior care home.

After prevailing in court against preservation activist Enid Sales for the right to tear down the old home, and then abandoning the senior care residence concept when his and his business partner's fathers died while waiting for it to be built, Mandurrage submitted plans for a two-story, 4,951-square-foot house.

Assistant city planner Nathan Schmidt recommended commissioners approve the basic design, a variance from a 26-foot-height limit to allow the house to be 29-and-a-half feet tall, a use permit for the extra 1,351 square feet allowed underground, and a coastal development permit for the project.

But commissioners worried some of the below-grade rooms could be lived in, which would violate city codes. Separate from the two-car garage at the rear of the lot are a storage area, laundry room and bathroom. With 9-foot-high ceilings, a bank of windows and a set of French doors, the storage room looked habitable, according to chairman Bill Strid.

"You need to come up with a design that precludes it being living space," Strid told Mandurrage. Commissioner Ken Talmage suggested lowering the ceiling, which could also reduce the overall building height.

Although it would be taller than code typically allows, the house would not look out of place on a street containing two looming hotels, according to Schmidt. The lot's grade drops steeply just past the property line, which qualifies as a "special physical circumstance" meriting a variance.

"The proposed building does fit well in the overall context," he said. "It does not seem overly massive."

But Strid wondered if a variance, which is used to enable development on properties that are constrained by size or slope, was warranted.

"I'm fearful of taking action that might come back and bite us later for granting a variance for a hardship if a hardship does not truly exist," he said.

Principal planner Brian Roseth responded, "Staff supported the variance due to the significant drop-off — it doesn't take long to get out into a pit."

Mandurrage hoped for approval of his plans and said he could work out the basement design issues with planning staff, but commissioner Ken Talmage commented, "There's been good discussion here. I suggest we look at it again next month."

The rest of the commission agreed, voting 4-0 — commissioner Julie Culver was absent — to delay its decision on Mandurrage's latest Mission Street project.

It's time for Water-Wise Landscaping

Did you know? Landscape irrigation accounts for 50% - 75% of the average household's water consumption.

There are many ways you can reduce your outdoor water use and still maintain a beautiful landscape. Follow these simple water-wise tips to help save water and money!

Water-Wise Tips:

- 💧 Water early in the day or in the evening.
- 💧 Use mulch to retain soil moisture.
- 💧 Replace thirsty lawns with beautiful, drought-tolerant native plants.
- 💧 Group plants of similar water needs together in the same irrigation zone.
- 💧 Install an ET (weather-based) controller on your irrigation system to reduce water consumption by about 30% - 50%.

Receive a FREE GardenSoft® CD-ROM! GardenSoft® is an interactive software program designed to help you create your own water-wise landscape. Features include design ideas, photo galleries, plant lists, irrigation tips and more! To order your FREE copy, contact the Water Awareness Committee of Monterey County Inc. by visiting our web site or calling the number below.

Budget calls for promotions, new job, more tourism $

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE PROPOSED 2006/2007 Carmel city budget does not provide for more library hours despite many requests, but it includes a new police officer and creates a "super department" at city hall.

City administrator Rich Guillen released the proposed $11.9 million balanced budget to the Carmel City Council at a special meeting May 23. The council will discuss it June 13.

A new community development department would be "kind of a super department" encompassing the community planning and building, building maintenance, public works, and forest, parks and beach departments, according to Guillen's plan. One person would run the entire agency, similar to those in other Peninsula cities, but the proposed bud-

"WHAT'S GOOD FOR CARMEL BUSINESS IS GOOD FOR CARMEL!"

If You Build It They Will Come!

In 2005 the Carmel Chamber undertook the task of creating a new place where visitors could come for assistance and comprehensive information. The Chamber invested considerable funds, time and energy to build the Carmel Visitor's Center and fully funded all costs related to the build out and operations. Opened last June, the Visitor's Center serves as one stop shopping for information and showcases the services of all of our 500 plus members.

Located on San Carlos between 5th & 6th this charming facility (designed by Chamber member Hale Williams Interiors) is managed by Lisa Budlong and staffed by 8 volunteers. When a visitor walks in the door they are enthusiastically greeted by knowledgeable staff and given the beautiful Guide to Carmel. Additionally, visitors can get maps of the area and relax while viewing a calendar of events and member information on our plasma screen.

People come wanting to know about the best restaurants (we give them a map of member restaurants), shopping, wine tasting, how to get to the beach and the Aquarium, where to stay (we assist with reservations) and of course, the perennial question, "Where can I go to see Clint?" Our wonderful volunteers dutifully answer all questions...except the last one. Our hope was that having this facility would increase visitor traffic to the Chamber and we have not been disappointed. Our visitor count is up by 220% over the same time period last year, with a total of 6466 Visitors coming to our center from January through April of this year.

I've always been a firm believer that great things come in small packages and the Visitor's Center is no exception. In just 550 square feet we help visitors to our area have a world class experience. The elegant, warm and welcoming ambiance assures that any day you go to the Carmel Visitors Center really is "a great day in Carmel!"

Carmel Valley

Village to honor three Tularcitos retirees

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A PRINCIPAL who helped his school win statewide recognition, a counselor some consider the "community therapist," and a longtime third-grade teacher "who pours her heart into her job and makes it look easy" are retiring from Tularcitos Elementary School this year. To ensure they don't leave without appropriate thanks and fanfare, the parent teacher organization will throw a public party for principal Kim Williams, counselor Trudy Dowd and teacher Marilyn Churilla in the Carmel Valley Community Park Sunday, June 4, at 1 p.m.

"Every time I'm with the kids doing something, I get a little teary eyed," said Williams, who took over as Tularcitos principal eight years ago. "I'm just going to miss the kids."

But with a son at Carmel High, Williams plans to stay involved, "maybe as a parent volunteer. The kids are the same, they're just a little bit bigger."

A teacher for 20 years, an assistant principal for three years and a principal for 15 years, Williams is fond of saying he's "been in school for 56 years." Though he lived in Spain and taught English there early in his career, he worked mostly in Northern California schools before coming to Tularcitos.

Williams started character education at the elementary school to help kids become respectful, responsible and caring members of their community. That program, high academic performance and other work at Tularcitos prompted the state to name it a California Distinguished School this year.

Christine Williams, Kim's wife and a potluck organizer, described Dowd as the "community therapist."

"She's amazing," she said. "People really appreciate her and all she does for people out here."

And Dowd's boss considers her his "right-hand person," who helped him get the character education program in place.

Hired as Tularcitos' first counselor in 1991, Dowd said she will particularly miss "the joy of coming to work everyday to be greeted by young children," and she will take with her a stack of letters, drawings and cards penned by the kids who sought her help.

"We created a comprehensive counseling program, which is a rare thing in elementary schools in California, but I also feel really proud that I have been able to teach children that counseling is a resource for everyone and how to access help when they need it," she said.

Dowd's husband, Patrick, a Monterey Peninsula Unified School District counselor for 35 years, is also retiring. They plan to travel and visit friends but have pledged to stay in Carmel Valley.

"This job has given me enough meaning to last a lifetime," she said. "Tularcitos is a wonderful school, and the perfect place to end my career in the helping profession."

Churilla began her career in Billings, Mont., but came to work for Carmel Unified School District in 1975. She was hired to teach at Tularcitos two years later.

"She's a natural teacher," Kim Williams said. "She pours her heart into it and yet makes it look easy. She knows her kids very well. The most important part of teaching is the relationship you develop with your kids — she's got the

Chef Ramos says everything is tutto buono at Tutto Mondo

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

TOO MANY cooks don't spoil the broth at Carmel-by-the-Sea's Tutto Mondo Trattoria.

Although Chef de Cuisine Olegario Valdez Ramos is in charge of his kitchen and crew, owners Michelle Mondo and Nadia Mondo pitch in occasionally, too — Michelle to experiment, Nadia to prepare specialties of her native La Spezia, Italy.

It was Mamma Nadia's family's Ligurian recipes that established the restaurant's reputation for authentic Italian cuisine when it opened as Mondo's in 1993. In fact, some of the recipes were used by Michelle and Nadia in their Delizia catering venture in Redwood City before that.

Michelle Mondo said, "We've used the same menu all these years — ever since we opened. We tried to change it a few times, but our regular customers got mad. They like the original menu." A few new dishes will be added within the next few months.

Ramos is as familiar and knowledgeable about the Italian dishes he cooks every day at Tutto Mondo as he is with his native Mexican cuisine. More so, perhaps, as he came to the United States when he was 15 with his father from their native Jalisco. That was 24 years ago. Now the whole family is here, living on the Peninsula, and he is married to Brenda. The couple have a 3-and-a-half year old son, Christopher, and another child is on the way.

Ramos learned to cook with local chefs in such prestigious restaurants as The Sardine Factory, Whaling Station and Casanova. For the two years previous to Mondo's opening, he cooked alongside the owner of the Greek Taverna, the restaurant that preceded Mondo's on Dolores, just south of Ocean Avenue.

"I've been working at my trade ever since coming to the Monterey Peninsula," he said. "I like good food, and I like to create it."

His favorite cuisine? Italian and Mexican, of course.

A busy schedule

Olegario has eight cooks on his line crew who alternate shifts so there are four or five working at one time. He comes in early to do the ordering and start making sauces for lunch and dinner, and to prepare luncheon entrées and certain dishes for the night crew.

Although always on hand for the lunch crowd, he takes some evenings off but drops by to check on his night staff, all of whom he hired and trained to work with him.

The Tutto Mondo menu is extensive and includes, on the luncheon list, panini, 8-inch pizzas, salads, bruschetta, antipasti, minestre, omelettes and pasta.

Dinner offers salads, bruschetta, antipasti, minestre, pasta and entrées of meat and chicken dishes. Daily specials of veal, seafood and fish are prepared by Ramos and his staff, but it's chef who selects and buys from seasonal, fresh availabilities.

Ramos imports free range veal from Canada and Holland, so look for veal piccata and osso buco on the daily specials board.

Lunch and dinner at Tutto Mondo are served trattoria style — no tablecloths on the handsome wood tables.

"Meals here are like a social event, even more than a dining experience," he said. "People feel comfortable right away."

"People talk across tables when they're here — they let go," Michelle Mondo said. "It's like a party in here most of the time."

As an example, she cited an evening last week when 30 Clear Channel Broadcasting employees came in for dinner at the same time as a large party of Cisco Systems people.

"Before long, they were talking back and forth between tables. We get some really great people in here," she said.

Movie, sports stars dine here

"We have a lot of sports celebrities dining at Tutto Mondo during the AT&T and Hollywood celebrities during both the AT&T and the Concours d'Elegance." She gestured around the walls decorated with framed photos of the famous and near famous, among them several of the very famous former Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood.

The decor of Tutto Mondo replicates an Italian trattoria in almost every detail. Mondo, who studied interior design in her hometown of Santa Cruz, put her talent to good use. She has made many trips over the years to La Spezia to visit relatives, so knows first hand what an authentic Italian trattoria looks and feels like.

Her mother and her father, John, a retired farmer who is also a partner in the business, still live in Santa Cruz. She lives in Carmel Valley with her children, Anthony, 9, and Sophie, 7, both students at Tularcitos School.

Entering Tutto Mondo, one is struck by the European atmosphere created with fiasci of wine displayed on ledges around the walls lighted by tiny fairy lights, and copper pans hanging from the ceiling. Over the wine service area at the back of the restaurant, replete with magnums and Jeroboams of Italian wines, lighted replicas of grape clusters add a warming, festive touch, as do a large chandelier and the lighted fireplace. Padded banquettes along one wall, booths along the other, and tables in the front window

Couple arrested on suspicious of selling crank

A WELFARE check of two Pacific Grove hotel guests May 19 led to the arrests of 35-year-old Seaside resident Jason Chioino and Carmel resident Nicole Gregg, 20. Chief Carl Miller reported Chioino was wanted on three outstanding warrants totaling $135,000 for drug and assault offenses, and the pair possessed more than pound of crystal methamphetamine for sale.

"The male arrested has a long history of drug involvement," Miller said, "and we were able to take him into custody without incident, which was fortunate."

Police arrived at the hotel near Asilomar after the manager expressed worry about the guests. According to police, Gregg checked in to the hotel May 17, hung a do-not-disturb sign on the door and did not appear for a scheduled checkout May 19. Hotel staff could not raise an answer by phone or at the door, so they called police.

The two were booked into Monterey County Jail, with Chioino's bail increased to $235,000. Gregg's bail was set at $48,000.

from his teaching position.

"The council members I've spoken to wish the very best for Jim," said mayor pro tem Dan Cort. "They just want him to get better."

City council members have the option of either hiring a new mayor outside of the council or appointing Cort to serve until a new mayor is chosen in the November election.

Jim Costello

City manger Jim Colangelo said it could be tricky if council members hire someone to be mayor.

"To bring someone who hasn't been on the council to be mayor at this point could be a little difficult," Colangelo said.

Although Costello had long term plans to retire in June as a teacher, he said "it wasn't an easy decision" to leave before his mayoral term was up.

Costello has Waldenstrom's Macroglobulinemia. He's being treated for the disease at an oncology center in Monterey.

"I want to get to the point where I can walk without being out of breath," he said.

Although he has a second home in Washington, he said rumors he's leaving the area are incorrect.

Costello found out he had cancer after routine checkup with his doctor. A cholesterol test showed he had a low red blood cell count.

The type of cancer Costello's been diagnosed with, named after a Swedish scientist who first recognized it, produces large amounts of an abnormal protein called macroglobulin, according to the American Cancer Society. The lymphoma cells grow mainly in the bone marrow but can grow in other organs such as the liver and the spleen. The cells can crowd out the normal blood-producing cells of the bone marrow.

"It's not something that's curable," Costello said. "It's something I hope to get under control. And when I do, who knows what I will get involved in next."

Churilla's skills netted her the Mildred Willemssen Excellence in Elementary Teaching award for the district, he said.

She and her husband, George, are retiring together and plan to spend the next year remodeling their home in Monterey, traveling and avoiding schedules.

Monterey Bay Sox seek shelter for homeless baseball players

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE MONTEREY Bay Sox — a local semi-pro baseball team — has a new home this season on a refurbished Fort Ord field where Willie Mays once chased down fly balls. Now, all the team has to do is find homes for all its players.

Dennis Marshall — who owns Carmel Baseball, a vintage baseball card and memorabilia shop in downtown Carmel — acquired the Bay Sox in January. As Marshall prepared for his team's opening game June 3, he discovered managing a roster of living, breathing ballplayers is a bit more challenging than managing a collection of bubble gum cards.

"It's infinitely more complicated," explained Marshall. "You can't break any NCAA rules, you can't pay people and you have to find them a place to live."

Finding homes for all his players might be Marshall's greatest challenge. The Peninsula's housing crunch is legendary, and the words "rent" and "affordable" are rarely uttered in the same sentence.

Since operating a semi-pro team on the fringes of organized baseball turns out to be more of a labor of love than a business venture, Marshall is launching an "adopt-a-ballplayer" campaign.

"In the Midwest, towns with 20,000-30,000 people have supported teams for 50 years," said Marshall, who grew up in Iowa. "In places like Cedar Rapids (Iowa) and Appleton (Wisconsin), people look forward to their ball players returning each summer."

With 57 games — and a dizzying nine double headers — spread out over just a two-month season, the players won't become permanent fixtures on anybody's couch.

"They'll hardly ever be there," Marshall assured prospective homeowners. "They'll be in and out."

Marshall is confident he can locate a few host families who just happen to love baseball.

"I hope people who are interested in hosting a player will do so not out of charity, but because they want to do it," he said.

Despite the high cost of living and its tourist-based economy, Marshall is convinced the Monterey Peninsula can support its own baseball team. But for that to happen, he's going to need a little help.

"The key to our success is local support," he explained.

The Bay Sox play in the California Collegiate League, which is designed to offer college players a place to play when school is out of session. Founded just a year ago, the team finished last season with a 9-9 record, which was good enough to qualify for the 42-team National Baseball Congress Semi-Pro World Series in Wichita, Kansas.

For more information about "adopting" a member of this summer's Bay Sox, call (831) 624-3070 or (831) 624-2320.

Come Celebrate the Future at Forest Hill Manor

Please join us for the Groundbreaking of the Expansion for Forest Hill Manor June 2 at 1:30 p.m.

Two years ago, the Expansion of Forest Hill Manor was announced and on June 2, we will celebrate the great success of these plans: the beginning of construction of new cottages, new apartments, a new assisted living wing and a new state-of-the-art skilled nursing center—all part of the Expansion of Forest Hill Manor.

And we'll celebrate the enthusiastic response to the introduction of Continuing Care—another first for the Monterey Peninsula—bringing a contemporary approach to health care delivery, attractive options in entrance fees and a non-regimented lifestyle. While the changes in the programs and accommodations at Forest Hill Manor has attracted great interest, the reputation for fine service, beautiful surroundings, friendly residents and an attentive staff has generated record numbers of residents for both the Manor and for the future residences now under construction.

Come and join the celebration at Forest Hill Manor June 2 at 1:30 p.m. For information or reservations call 831-657-5200 or toll free-1-866-657-4900.

Meg's Health Notes

Presented by
Meg Parker Connors, R.N.

LOW TESTOSTERONE

According to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, an estimated 4 to 5 million American men suffer from low testosterone. Symptoms of this common problem include lack of energy, depression, decreased work and sports performance, falling asleep after dinner, muscle loss, and low libido. These are problems that are likely to arise after age 40. If tests indicate a deficiency, testosterone replacement therapy may be an option. At least 70% of men who have testosterone replacement therapy get relief from their symptoms, and almost every man will experience an increase in his muscle mass and perhaps in bone mineral density. The treatment involves either injections, skin patches, or skin gel, and the commitment is lifelong.

If you experience symptoms associated with low testosterone, you may want to ask your doctor about getting your testosterone levels checked. Your primary care physician can check your testosterone levels with a simple blood test and treat you if you have low testosterone. This column has been brought to you by VICTORIAN HOME CARE / RESIDENTIAL CARE HOMES. We respond to the complex physical and emotional issues faced by those we serve with open hearts and minds, with no preconceived notion other than to provide care in the most compassionate way possible.

P.S. There is no evidence that testosterone supplementation increases that risk of getting prostate cancer.

Meg Parker Connors is an RN and owner of Victorian Health Care Services, Victorian Residential Care Homes and Help-at-Home, a domestic referral service here in Monterey. For assistance, call 655-1935.

Summer to-do list for busy moms

By Hilary Hanlon

MAYBE THE annual trip to Hawaii isn't happening for one reason or another and you've decided to stick around this summer. For parents or small children, summertime can translate to endless days with nothing to do. From the tried-and-true beach to the aquarium and local playground, most Peninsula moms think they've done it all. But this writer, a mother of a four- and a seven-year-old, discovered some new outings right under her nose.

Point Lobos Scavenger Hunt and Picnic

Sunny or cloudy, Point Lobos State Reserve remains an assured adventure for any age children who are inspired by fresh sea air, unusual animal sightings and shell-laden beaches.

Before leaving the house, pack a lunch and write down a list of ten or twenty items/objects to be found while visiting the park. Because of the reserve's "no collection" policy, this scavenger hunt doesn't involve taking anything with you. But kids' senses of sight, sound and smell — and their respect for nature — will be heightened as they hunt for the things on their list.

Here is a sample of what a Point Lobos scavenger list might include: abalone shell, feather, purple flower, small pinecone, a gray squirrel, a chickadee chirping in the trees, an all-black stone, a lizard, butterfly or sea otter on its back. With the park's 10 miles of trails along craggy bluffs, over grassy cliffs and down towards the beaches, scavenger hunters have ample ground to scout.

When all of the items on the list are marked off (or perhaps midway), hungry hunters can enjoy sandwiches by the ocean or under a canopy of towering pines. Ending the exploration with a trip to the beach at low tide to search out sideways-crawling hermit crabs, sea urchins, snails and tiny fish is a wonderful way to wrap up this exceptional out-of-doors adventure.

Tips for a Terrific Time: Bring binoculars,

Pony rides in Pebble Beach

Another little-known place for children between 3 and 6 years old is the Pebble Beach Equestrian Center, where the public is welcome to enjoy pony rides through the stables and adjoining woods and then into the arena for abbreviated jumping drills. The equestrian center staff is careful to fit each child to a pony, taking into consideration their experience, age and size. With horse trainer guiding, the ponies are led slowly down the pine needle covered trails through the woods of Pebble Beach (sightings of deer are not unusual during this portion of the ride), and then back towards the equestrian center where all sorts of beautiful horses can be seen up-close. Children are also welcome to feed the horses.

Tips for a Terrific Time: Wear long pants and closed toe shoes. Bring your camera and some apples and carrots.

Location: Portola Road and Alva Lane in Pebble Beach. (831) 624-2756

Cost: The entire experience lasts 20 minutes (sometimes longer) and costs $20.

Hours: 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m.

Carmel Children's Library Summer Programs

The Harrison Memorial Library Youth Services Department is planning several fun reading-educational experiences for youth this summer. First, children can participate in a summer-rewards reading program called Paws, Claws, Scales and Tales Program that includes meeting reading goals (provided by the library) and then earning rewards (also provided by the library) for achieving them. A reading log and an appetite to read qualifies any youngster who wants to participate.

Rewards are given to children when they return to the library to tell about their reading either in words or by a picture.

Not only will this system of positive reinforcement encourage early readers, it really helps them in school.

"Research shows that kids who keep reading during summer break either stay at the same reading level or advance," says Youth Services Librarian Gwen Sangster.

Other summer programs at the children's library will include storytellers, a clown, face painting, music and a talk given by a veterinarian.

Carmel Presbyterian Church Summer Camps

Two Summer Camps will be offered at Carmel Presbyterian Church combining the basics of faith with loads of fun:

■ Rescue 109 (for ages 3-10) Joining with Children's Conferences International, Carmel Presbyterian presents Rescue 109, a quality, biblical-based program for kids that teaches them how to rescue and care for themselves and others. Time will be spent in the Fire House with Bible stories and fun skits; learning Scripture and enjoying music. The Fire Teams will then move onto outdoor activities: relay races, obstacle courses and water balloon fights. Indoors, for the rest of the program, children will make crafts and enjoy wholesome snacks and refreshments.

Tips for a Terrific Time: Wear comfortable, layered clothes

Date: June 19-23, 9 a.m. to noon.

Kids went WILD for the Serengeti

(Top) Last year, the kids at Carmel Presbyterian's summer camp learned all about Africa ... and how to act really silly when your picture is being taken. This year, they'll tackle firefighting and the Middle Ages.

(Left) It's fun to get your hands dirty, and one of the best places to do that while learning all about glazing and mosaics is at Glazes Ceramics Studio at The Crossroads Shopping Village. Glazes offers several summer programs.

Laguna Seca raceway offers adrenaline-inducing fun

By MARY BROWNFIELD

RACE FANS know the Monterey Peninsula is endowed with one of the best racetracks ever built. Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca, a twisting, climbing and falling 2.238-mile ribbon of tarmac, challenges racers of all levels and presents spectators with awesome views.

The country's only nonprofit racetrack, Laguna Seca is owned by Monterey County and operated by the Sports Car Racing Association of the Monterey Peninsula. Volunteers from local charities help out at main events to earn money for their groups.

The 2006 season opened in March with the A1 Grand Prix of Nations, followed by the U.S. Sports Car Invitational this month, and the track is now closed for heavy construction and safety improvements in anticipation of July's Red Bull U.S. Grand Prix motorcycle races.

The only American appearance of the wildly popular MotoGP racing series, last year's USGP sold out, drawing more spectators than any other event in the track's history. The 2006 races are set for July 21-23.

The hotly contested MotoGP World Championship includes four Americans: Nicky Hayden, Colin Edwards, John Hopkins and Kenny Roberts, Jr. Hayden, riding for Honda, won last year's MotoGP race at Laguna.

The popular American Motorcyclist Association series will also run that weekend, and track general manager Gill Campbell has promised improvements to traffic, parking, concessions and other facilities that were unable to handle last year's crowds.

The unmistakable growl of vintage racecars will reverberate through the hills Aug. 18-20 during the 33rd Annual Rolex Monterey Historic Automobile Races. Founded by Steve Earle with several dozen cars and a handful of spectators, the historics have grown to be the world's most notable vintage races. The event, featuring Cooper, will honor Laguna's 50-year history with IMSA, Can-Am and Trans-Am races.

More than 400 drivers will compete in 14 different classes Saturday and Sunday, with the unique and always amusing awards ceremony bringing everything to a close Sunday afternoon. Paddock displays of vintage cars will also be open to spectators.

Finally, the Monterey Sports Car Championships will run

Oct. 20-22, with the main event dramatically ending after dark Saturday evening. Sleekly built and stunningly fast, the cars' sensation of speed is heightened as dark falls and the lights come up.

For tickets and information, call (800) 327-SECA during normal business hours or visit www.laguna-seca.com.

Fido's vacation: Things to look for in a kennel.

By CHARYN PFEUFFER

MY DOG, Gus, and I have some codependency issues. Gus is a boxer mix I saved from 24-hour death row at the Stockton SPCA when he was just 3 months old. Until six months ago, we'd never spent more than 48 hours apart. As my work schedule has required more travel, primarily to non-dog friendly destinations, I've become an expert on the best places to take Gus when we cannot be together.

Summer is the season for vacations, and although many of us would love for Fido to be part of our every waking activity, it isn't always feasible. Finding quality animal care can alleviate your worries about leaving your best friend at home. Plus, I'm finding that in any long-term relationship, a little time and space can do wonders for everyone involved, and Gus is no exception.

Here are tips to get the most out of your dog walker or boarding.

Your first step should be to create a list of local kennels. Ask a friend, neighbor, veterinarian, animal shelter, or dog trainer for recommendations. You can also check the Yellow Pages under "Kennels & Pet Boarding."

Once you have names — even ones you got from reliable sources — it's important to do a little Nancy Drew-like sleuthing. Start by picking up the phone. Oftentimes

And for anyone who has ever wanted to tackle Laguna from the back of a bike or behind the wheel of a car, several organizations host schools there throughout the year.

A handful of car clubs rent the track, allowing their members to play for a day, but for drivers seeking lessons, Skip Barber calls Laguna home and offers classes for aspiring racers, curious fans and drivers who simply want to improve their street skills. Visit www.skipbarber.com for more information.

Motorcycle racing schools also rent out Laguna Seca and bring their instructors to teach the nuances and challenges of riding on a track with the goal of improving every student's skills. A full schedule can be viewed at www.laguna-seca.com.

people underestimate the value of thoughtful questions posed in a telephone call.

Things to ask:

- Is the facility (insert breed, age, health condition, special needs here) friendly?
- Does it provide 24-hour staffing in the building with the dogs?
- Does it have a fire alarm system? Is it a monitored system or just smoke and fire detectors?
- Are pets required to be current on their vaccinations, including the vaccine for canine kennel cough (Bordetella)?
- How does the kennel handle illnesses or injuries?
- Does it have a veterinarian who provides services 24 hours per day?
- Will I be contacted if an emergency arises?

- How often will fresh water be offered to my dog?
- How often will my dog be fed? Do I need to bring my bowls from home?
- Will my dog get to interact with other dogs?

■ Also, ask whether the prospective kennel belongs to the American Boarding Kennels Association, a trade association founded by kennel operators to promote professional standards of pet care.

Besides requiring members to subscribe to a code of ethics, ABKA offers voluntary facility accreditation that indicates the facility has been inspected and meets ABKA standards of professionalism, safety, and quality of care. (You can also check with the Better Business Bureau to see whether any complaints have been lodged against a kennel you are considering.)

Now that you have made your list, called and asked all of your questions, if you're satisfied, it's time to set up a time to visit the facility.

Things to look for:

- Is it clean? (Do you smell icky odors in the pet housing areas?)
- Does it have nice kennels or fence kennels with concrete floors?
- Is there a comfortable temperature in the facility?
- Is it well ventilated?
- Are there food and water bowls in each pen? Is there water in the water bowl?
- Are staff members friendly to you and, more importantly, to the dogs?
- Do the dogs seem edgy and nervous or do they appear content?
- Do they have a play area?
- Does the staff appear to have a handle on the facility?

Basic Boarding Tip: Be sure your pet knows basic commands and is well socialized around other people and pets; if your pet has an aggression problem or is otherwise unruly, he/she may not be a good candidate for boarding. Before taking your animal to the kennel, make sure he is current on vaccinations. It's also a good idea to accustom your pet to longer kennel stays by first boarding her during a short trip, such as a weekend excursion. This allows you to work out any problems before boarding your pet for an extended period. When you go, bring a familiar blanket or favorite toy. These items will have your smell on it and remind your pet of home. Also be sure to label any items that go with your pet, though be prepared for the possibility that they might not necessarily come home with him. Gus has lost many a much loved toy at his various kennel stays. Also, be sure to provide the staff with all necessary medications and instructions, along with contact numbers for yourself and your veterinarian.

Nearly forgotten literary icon remembered at Big Sur tribute

By CHRIS COUNTS

IN A place celebrated for its colorful Bohemian traditions and where literary luminaries like Robinson Jeffers, John Steinbeck and Henry Miller have their own museums, the mention of the name Jaime de Angulo barely raises an eyebrow.

But de Angulo — an eccentric writer, poet, linguist and anthropologist who settled in Big Sur in 1915 — was not only a contemporary of Jeffers, Steinbeck and Miller, but a remarkable individual in his own right.

The Henry Miller Library in Big Sur will host, "Home Among the Swinging Stars," a tribute to de Angulo, Saturday, May 27, at 3 p.m.

Stefan Hyner, a German writer, poet and art historian, will present a talk and read poems by de Angulo, who was arguably the first of Big Sur's full-time Bohemians.

Born into Spanish aristocracy in 1887, de Angulo was a free spirit who moved to America in 1905, where he worked briefly as a cowboy before landing in San Francisco the day before the 1906 earthquake. He later attended the University of California at Berkeley, but his fascination with both the fading Native American culture and his new home in Big Sur interrupted the promise of his academic career.

Perhaps de Angulo's greatest contribution to academia was his study of the Pit River Indians.

Not only did he and his wife actually live with the tribe, but he managed to translate the Pit River Indian language into English. In his best known book,

"Indian Tales," he preserved for posterity the rich stories and poems of a culture that has disappeared into history.

For more than 30 years, de Angulo maintained a ranch high atop Big Sur's Partington Ridge, where Miller later settled and made famous in "Big Sur and the Oranges of Heironymous Bosch." Magnus Toren, director of the Miller library, lived on the former de Angulo Ranch when he first moved to Big Sur two decades ago.

"I know the ranch intimately," Toren explained. "It's a real treasure and one of the real special places in Big Sur. I don't believe it's an accident he ended up there."

In his early days on the Big Sur coast, the sight of de Angulo — strikingly handsome and dressed in Native American regalia as he rode his horse along the Old Coast Trail — was no doubt quite a spectacle. In old photographs, he looks like he would have fit right in during the late 1960s or early 1970s.

In his last years, he came down off the mountain and moved back to Berkeley, where hosted a popular radio program, also called "Indian Tales."

The show gained him greater recognition than his literary works, and it also earned him a devoted following among the Bay Area's blossoming Beat culture.

"[Beat poet] Gary Snyder was a big fan of Jaime's," Toren said. "Beat writers like Jack Kerouac would have no doubt been familiar with him. He inspired a lot of people to become interested in the Native American culture."

The Miller Library is located a quarter-mile south of the landmark Nepenthe restaurant, which is located about 28 miles south of Carmel.

For more information, call (831) 667-2574 or visit www.henrymiller.org.

Jazz and blues take center stage on holiday weekend

AFTER AN extended hiatus, live music returns to the Jazz and Blues Company on San Carlos Street this Saturday, May 27, with the long-anticipated return of jazz vocalist Sony Holland.

A promising young artist, Holland recently completed a 12-week engagement at Tokyo's Park Hyatt Hotel, where she sang for celebrities, Japanese royalty, streams of international visitors and an adoring Tokyo fan base. Sony also performed last month to a packed house at Yoshi's in Oakland's Jack London Square and performs regularly at San Francisco's Plush Room and Pearl's. Holland's quick rise in the world of jazz is impressive considering a few years ago she was singing on the street at Pier 39 in San Francisco peddling copies of her CD, On a San Francisco High.

Accompanied by pianist Benny Watson, drummer Dave Rokeach and bassist John Schifflett, Holland will perform standards plus originals from her three CDs and promises surprises, including the debut of "By The Sea," a new song about Carmel by her husband, composer/arranger Jerry Holland.

The Jazz and Blues Company — not yet back to its weekly schedule of music — has also booked jazz guitarist Bruce Foreman for Saturday, June 17. The music starts at 7:30 p.m. For more info and reservations, call (831) 624-6432.

At Bixby Bistro in the Barnyard shopping center, pianist Rick Forschino appears May 26 with vocalist Holli Moon and on Saturday and Sunday evenings pianist Johnny Fabulous makes his Bistro debut performance. Fabulous, once described as "Frank Sinatra meets Joe Cocker," blends the

$90,000 to inventory, appraise city's art

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE THREAT of disappearing Rembrandts and drowned Westons motivated the Carmel City Council to approve a $90,000 contract with Ellen Osterkamp to inventory and appraise the city's art collection Tuesday.

The resulting documents will be used to insure the collection, which numbers more than 1,000 pieces, as well as to support city audits that must include assets, according to government accounting standards.

"Having a complete inventory and appraisal of our art collection will give staff the tools to manage it," community services manager Christie Miller told the council May 23. Part of the collection was inventoried and appraised in 2000 and 2002, and valued at $1.6 million for insurance purposes, but the surveys did not include the estimated 700 pieces kept at the library's park branch.

Osterkamp will photograph and document everything there — including 150 valuable Edward Weston photographs — write a report and appraise the pieces. She will also inventory, research and value the 350 works stored in city hall, Sunset Center and Harrison Memorial Library's main branch that were included in the 2000 and 2002 surveys.

"As stewards of the public's money and assets, I think we are very derelict," Mayor Sue McCloud said, in failing to fully appraise and insure the collection. "We have lost a few things — Rembrandts and a few things of that caliber have evaporated."

A roof fire at a restaurant across the street from a city library six years ago particularly worried McCloud, an art collector.

"It was just sheer luck it didn't come down on the shingle roof at the park branch," she said. The Westons are stored in a vault equipped with sprinklers, so they might have been drenched, if not burned.

But the collection is hardly full of such highly valuable works.

"I have been told there's a lot of — for want of a better term — junk in our inventory," councilman Gerard Rose said. "True?"

McCloud agreed, and Guillen commented, "Art is in the eye of the beholder." Rose suspected the city possesses a few velvet Elvises or paintings of dogs playing poker.

"Clearly, we have 1,100 pieces of art, and a fair number of them are valuable, so this is an important discussion," councilman Mike Cunningham said. "Having said that, $90,000 is a lot of money."

He suggested conducting the inventory and eliminating the obviously less valuable works to reduce the number of thorough appraisals, and therefore the cost.

"We felt this was still a bargain, and Christie will do good job making sure it does not exceed $90,000 and maybe even go down," city administrator Rich Guillen said. "We don't want Ellen to go back and rework this."

He also pointed out the council set aside $15,000 in this year's budget and planned to spend $75,000 in next year's budget for the work.

Miller suggested she present Osterkamp's inventory report and proposed plan for appraising the collection at a future city council meeting, and members agreed to approve Osterkamp's contract.

BERET ROLAND, 4, is a small briard with one ear that sticks up while the other obstinately lies flat. It is only right and good that she is named Beret, as briards are an old French breed of dog originally from Brie.

Beret has been a valued and loved member of the Roland family for three years, although she lived with two other families before that. The penultimate family ran a newspaper ad announcing she was up for adoption. Suzanne Roland answered the ad, met the former owner in the Del Monte shopping center parking lot, and the change of family was a fait accompli in a matter of minutes. Mom Suzanne took one look at Beret, with her fluffy, long fur, raised ear and endearing smile, and her heart turned over.

Now, three to four times a week, Mom Suzanne and Dad

Chandler drive to Carmel Beach from Marina to bring Beret and her step brother, Neige, a giant snowy white

Great Pyrenees, whom loyal readers will remember affectionately from our Sandy Claws' column of Oct. 15, 2005. Although much smaller than 15-month-old Neige, Beret is the alpha dog in the Roland family, and Neige follows her around dutifully.

At the beach, Beret leaps ecstatically into the ocean, hits a wave and comes out. She does this over and over, never swimming, always keeping on her feet. She feels it's the neatest game in the world.

Beret's other idea of fun is to bark at and chase birds, rodents and/or cats. The chase is just a game and Beret never harms any of her prey. Once, she caught an injured bird, but just touched it gently with her paw and kindly left it in peace.

At night, Beret and Neige pile into Mom and Dad's master bed. By morning, everyone is clinging to a favorite spot, and Beret is balancing on a lower corner, her four limbs hanging half on and half off.

Touring in support of his 2005 release What I Really Mean, Robert Earl Keen is a singer songwriter at the peak of his career. Known best for a handful of what he calls "yee-haw party boy" tunes, Keen has nevertheless put together an impressive body of thoughtful original music and is a fixture on Americana radio stations throughout the country including our own local radio treasure, KPIG. Keen will perform at Sunset Center (with opening act Reckless Kelly) on Saturday, June 2, at 8 p.m. kicking off an ambitious summer slate of music at the premier Carmel venue, including The Fabulous Thunderbirds on Wednesday, June 7; the Marshall Tucker Band, Friday, August 11; Poco and Pure Prairie League on Saturday, August 19; and former Traffic frontman Dave Mason on Saturday, August 26. For advance tickets and more information call (831) 620-2048.

Monterey Live on Alvarado Street presents its weekly Friday Salsa night featuring popular Santa Cruz Caribbean band Broken English performing at 9 p.m. May 26. Founded by Javier Muniz and Ishmael Huggins, Broken English draws upon Cuban traditions of rumba, mambo, cha-cha-cha, guajira, son and timba. The instrumental mix of acoustic and amplified guitar, piano, bass, sax, trombone, trumpet and the full range of Latin percussion, combined with the wonderful talent of their two lead singers, creates an infectious sound.

On Saturday night, Central Coast rhythm and blues band Cold Front performs featuring veteran drummer and singer Minor Williams. Call Monterey Live at (831) 646-1415.

Down the street at Cibo Ristorante "reggae superstar" Tony Miles performs May 26 and 27 and on Cannery Row at Sly McFly's, Antonio Young and the Masters of the Old School play their funky brand of old school show both Friday and Saturday as well. The show starts at 9 p.m. Call (831) 649-8050.

Also on tap this Memorial Day weekend the Santa Cruz Blues Festival boasts a lineup that features headliners B.B. King, Coco Montoya and Rod Piazza on Saturday plus Los Lobos, John Hiatt and Dave Alvin on Sunday. The festival is located at the Aptos Village Park. For more information visit their website at www.santacruzbluesfestival.com.

— may make old school baseball fans cringe, but it could prove to be a boon to the Bay Sox this summer. Rich Aldrete, who starred at Monterey High School and UC Berkeley before playing nearly a decade in the minor leagues, will serve as the team's part-time designated hitter, Marshall reported. At 40, Aldrete can't zip around the bases quite as quickly as he used to, but he's still a powerful hitter who is certain to make at least a few collegiate league pitchers sweat.

Fundraiser pays tribute to nearly forgotten Lefty

As America's national pastime, baseball has enjoyed a long and fruitful relationship with the arts. Writers, poets and musicians have weighed in on the game since its rise in popularity following the Civil War. Inspired by that rich creative heritage, three local creative types who just happen to love baseball will present "Lefty O'Doul's Baseball Show" Friday, May 26, at the Carl Cherry Center for the Arts.

The event — a fundraiser for the Cherry Center's sculpture garden — features the talents of actor Taelen "Lefty" Thomas, and singer-songwriters Steve "Crash" Mortensen and Nathan "Dirt" Trosky. The trio pays tribute to the charismatic O'Doul, a nearly forgotten Depression-era slugger who not only was once the most popular athlete in San Francisco, but he is also credited with introducing baseball to Japan.

The event starts at 6:30 p.m. with a pre-game tailgate buffet of hot dogs, peanuts, Cracker Jacks and beer. For vegetarians, tofu dogs will also be available. The performance begins at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $20. For reservations, call (831) 624-7491.

COSTS

"It's really troubling to me to be approving $3.4 million for a pool," new board member Marcy Rustad said, considering the high school lacks an adequate cafeteria and plans for comprehensive changes "that would actually drive culture and academics."

Nonetheless, she and the rest of the board voted to accept DWR's bid, and Ruhnke said he would work with the contractor on possible cost cuts.

During the evening meeting, board members also accepted bids from three firms that will move relocatable classrooms at the high school: civil construction firm Sommerville ($6,700), mover Quesada Construction ($60,000) and Circle C Electric ($64,750). Their combined bids came in $18,950 over the $112,500 construction budget.

Quesada and Circle C also won the bid to move the relocatables at River School with a total of $143,250, which exceeds the anticipated construction costs by $68,250. Ruhnke said unanticipated electrical work has made the job more expensive.

Randazzo Enterprises was the sole bidder for numerous projects at the high school, including tearing down the drama room and breezeway, rerouting electrical systems, upgrading services to several buildings and classrooms, and providing new power systems for new classrooms. The contractor's $580,620 bid exceeded the estimated $375,000 construction cost by $205,620, but Ruhnke said some of that expense should be offset by lower building construction costs.

Showing "how wacky things are," Ruhnke said, four firms bid on hazardous materials removal at the high school. Midwest Environmental won the contract with $50,288, $24,712 below the estimated $75,000.

The board put off until June 1 the bid to turn the former boiler room at the high school into a power room and IT hub to see if some parts of the project could be excised to cut costs. Sole bidder DMC Construction proposed $99,900, including a fire suppression system that would cost $20,000.

The rest of the list

The approvals followed a lengthy discussion of districtwide construction projects, most of which will be all or partially funded by the $21.5 million bond. According to a list provided by Ruhnke, the total costs over the next three years will be $29.55 million, including $247,000 in state tax dollars and $3.25 million from other district and community resources.

"When we passed the bond, $21.5 million seemed like plenty of money to do all these things," district superintendent Marvin Biasotti said.

In addition to the pool, the most expensive projects are the new library ($4.43 million) and theater ($6.4 million) at the high school, followed by the gym renovation and addition ($2.4 million). Library construction is set to begin in the 2006/2007 fiscal year, with the new theater following in 2007/2008.

Board members debated the new library design, which includes basement storage for textbooks, a computer lab, classrooms and other modern amenities. Board president Howard Given said the library's tab has grown far beyond what was originally anticipated.

"I'm just looking at all the numbers," he said. "They're ballooning — we're going to be short — we need to spend our money wisely."

Trustee Amy Funt agreed but said a consultant suggested the proposed building is smaller and provides fewer resources than most new high school libraries. "The library is clearly a good investment, no matter what we do there," she said.

"I wouldn't go that far," Given responded.

Rather than hash out the details of the library proposal May 22, the board decided to hold a special meeting June 1.

Rustad, Funt and Given also lamented the lack of progress and vision for the cafeteria, which they described as dark, inadequate in size and unable to serve more than a quarter of the high school's students. Work on the cafeteria is scheduled for the 2006/2007 fiscal year and will involve bond and non-bond funds.

While reviewing the rest of the list, Rustad wanted to add more high school work, such as hardscape and landscaping, but Biasotti recommended the board focus on those already identified as important.

"My concern is, as we look at these growing numbers, our focus has to stay on the projects our community voted for and supported," he said.

"I'm intimidated by Cindy and find it difficult to say no to her demands," King said. "I do not want drugs or anyone under the influence of them on my property or in my presence."

King recounted an alarming incident in the first week of May at another one of King's houses on Granite Street in Pacific Grove, where she is currently living.

"Cindy came to my home screaming profanities and attempted to enter my house through the windows," she said. "I was frightened for my safety and called the police. While I do not want to believe Cindy would hurt me, she is acting out of character."

In his own declaration to the court, King's attorney, Robert Rosenthal, outlined his experiences with Hurley, which included what he perceived to be a personal threat.

"King's personal health, safety and welfare are in jeopardy," he said. "Credible information exists that hundreds of thousands of dollars of King's property have been and continue to be stolen by Hurley" and her friends.

The Pine Cone could not reach Hurley, who does not have a listed phone number.

King was removed from her oceanfront home on the 1600 block of Sunset Drive Sept. 16 after police officers found her living in unsafe and unhealthy conditions, which included trash piled to the ceiling. The two buildings on King's property had numerous building code violations, including poor electrical wiring, trash and other debris.

The Pacific Grove SWAT team had converged on the home because police suspected drug activity. They found a small amount of marijuana. Hurley was living in a ramshackle adobe on the property at the time and was taking care of King. The same day, the Monterey County Health Department red-tagged the home, prohibiting anyone from staying there.

But as recently as April 19, Hurley was arrested by Pacific Grove police officers for trespassing on the property as well as being in possession of the painkiller Vicodin without a prescription. Officers also found a small of what they believed to be methamphetamine, according to police chief Carl Miller. A friend of Hurley's was also arrested for trespassing.

Even after her arrest, Hurley unlawfully returned to the property, living there with several friends, according to King. And on May 2, neighbors spotted someone entering the home through a window, according to court documents.

"I am informed and believe that much of my personal property located there is being removed or is in danger of being removed," King said.

According to Rosenthal, on April 10 while visiting King's property, he spotted one of Hurley's friends walking from the property carrying a canvas bag "with contents that were obviously heavy and showed the indentation of what appeared to be coins," Rosenthal said.

When the attorney confronted the man, who vehemently denied he had placed a bag in the trailer, he showed Rosenthal a different bag containing clothes and an empty purse.

"Hurley told me the only coins she ever sold that belonged to King were sold to pay King's taxes," Rosenthal said.

When Rosenthal returned to King's estate two days later with two police officers to serve a power of attorney authorizing him to sell King's property and remove anybody living there, Hurley reportedly threatened Rosenthal, saying, "I'm gonna get you," he said.

A receipt to Hurley shows she had sold gold coins belonging to King, despite repeatedly denying the charge, Rosenthal said.

Besides several reported instances of someone breaking into King's home, a storage locker in Monterey that contained hundreds of thousands of dollars of silver was ransacked, Rosenthal said.

"On May 8, I received an anonymous telephone call informing me that Cindy Hurley's friend had possession of Mrs. King's silver and had sold $50,000 worth to a certain coin dealer," he said.

Monterey and Pacific Grove police are investigating the incidents.

According to King, she gave Hurley 30 percent ownership in various rental properties as a way of paying Hurley for taking care of her.

Hurley is not employed, and "her sole source of income is passive rental income from property we own," King said.

King owns a considerable amount of property in Pacific Grove, including at least three acres on four separate parcels directly across the street from Asilomar State Beach. Her home is also located between Sunset Drive and Asilomar Boulevard.

A nephew of King's is caring for her at her Granite Street home.

Local businessman Nader Agha, who told The Pine Cone he is a friend of King's, signed King's declaration to the court as a witness.

King's property on Sunset, which is still red-tagged, remains cluttered with trash and debris.

Election in June 2007?

Last month, the Local Agency Formation Commission voted to accelerate the incorporation application process in an effort to get the issue on the November 2006 ballot, making it LAFCO's primary focus. This week, the commission endorsed a revised timeline for the process, essentially giving its staff a green light to move forward.

But California law allows for the review of an incorporation's fiscal analysis by the state controller's office, provided the party requesting the audit is willing to pay for it. And opponents of Carmel Valley's incorporation announced this week they are willing to fund a study that could cost as much as $50,000.

"It will happen," predicted Bob Sinotte, one of the opponents who will challenge the financial data the revenue neutrality agreement is based on.

"If someone requests a review, it will most likely postpone the election," explained Kate McKenna, LAFCO executive officer.

Incorporation proponent Glenn Robinson, who conceded the review could push the election to next June, is confident the numbers will withstand scrutiny.

"It would be a waste for them," Robinson said. "But if that's what they want to do, it's their money."

If opponents do ask for a review of the fiscal analysis, it won't come cheap.

"Some reviews have cost as much as $50,000," McKenna added. "The preliminary estimate from the state is $25,000, but it could cost more."

'Leave us out'

The letter from Lombardo to LAFCO also identifies the Carmel Mission Inn, Tehama Development and Property Reserves, Inc. as businesses opposed to being included in the Carmel Valley incorporation.

According to Lombardo, his clients are "particularly concerned by what they perceive as a rush by LAFCO to placate the special interest group in Carmel Valley which is attempting to use the incorporation process in order to accomplish a political agenda, rather than following the steps necessary to provide accurate financial analysis." Sinotte believes the lack of business support will ultimately doom the incorporation proposal.

The election was fast-tracked for November, but a state audit seems likely to force a delay

"If the business district opts out, there's not enough money to fund the city," claimed Sinotte. "This forces a reexamination of the revenue neutrality agreement."

Robinson, though, said it's not up to the businesses to decide whether they want to be included in the new city.

"Only voters can opt out," he insisted.

McKenna agreed with Robinson's assessment.

"There is no procedure for opting out," she said. "LAFCO will make the decision."

A public hearing — set for July 12-13 — was scheduled by LAFCO this week. According to McKenna, the commission will consider public comments on the boundaries of the proposed city before making a decision July 12. If the public comment portion of the hearing takes longer than anticipated, the decision on the boundaries will be pushed to July 13. Currently, the boundaries of the proposed area of incorporation correspond with those of the Carmel Valley Master Plan, which includes most of the land from Highway 1 to Los Tulares and from ridgeline to ridgeline.

Aside from boundary issues, the July 12-13 hearing will be perhaps the most critical juncture in the incorporation process because it could be the last opportunity to prevent it from going to a vote.

WHY MEN NEED GPS

Male drivers are known the world over for being, shall we say, "reluctant" to ask for directions when they are lost. The latest evidence of the gender-specific trait comes from a British study that shows that male drivers lose about six million hours on the road annually because they stubbornly refuse to ask for directions. According to a survey by the Royal Automobile Club Direct Insurance, men wait an average 20 minutes before giving up and asking for directions; their female counterparts wait half that amount of time to do so. Beyond that, nearly two-thirds of couples admitted to having arguments over being lost on the road. Surely, a global positioning system (GPS) is the perfect technology for male drivers.

More and more new cars come equipped with GPS navigation, which can only lead to fewer arguments between couples. We can give you advice regarding GPS systems. There are many options for GPS navigation, ranging from simple text versions, to graphical maps which chart your progress in real time. We are located near the corner of Figueroa and Franklin, just west of Jack's Park in Downtown Monterey.

P.S.: According to the survey mentioned above, satellite navigation systems were used by about 20 percent of drivers.

Kevin and Sue Anne are the owners of Pacific Motor Service located at 550 E. Franklin St. here in Monterey.

get contains no money for that job. Retirements, attrition or a stronger economy should allow its funding in the future.

Also, under the new budget, city clerk Heidi Burch would oversee executive assistant Sandy Farrell and four administrative coordinators. "There hasn't been one person completely responsible for making sure work gets delegated accordingly," Guillen said at the council meeting.

The only new position — police officer — would cost the city money but also save some by reducing Carmel P.D.'s overtime, according to Guillen.

His reorganization plan also includes staff changes in planning and building, a promotion and expanded responsibilities for finance manager Joyce Giuffre, and a promotion to director for community services manager Christie Miller.

Raise fees, add to reserves

Sales, hotel and property taxes account for 80 percent of the $11.9 million budget, and Guillen anticipates overall growth of 2 percent to 3 percent.

"Our treasurer thought sales tax might be a little bullish because of fuel costs," he said. "We're going to keep it there and hope for the best."

Permit fees and fines account for 5 percent, provided the council approves increases that would add $150,000 to the general fund.

Among the proposed hikes:

■ overtime parking citations, from $20 to $30;

LEGALS DEADLINE:

TUESDAY
4:30 PM

■ construction parking permits, from $15 per day to $25 per day; and

■ residential parking permits, from $15 per year to $20 per year:

Design and land use permit fees would increase across the board, with the greatest change proposed for major commercial design review ($750 to $1,650).

"If the council should decide we don't want to increase fees, that would mean taking $150,000 out of expenses," Guillen said. "Call it blackmail, but if you're not going to pass taxes, this is the only other way."

The fee hikes would help net $278,000 for reserves, according to Guillen — the first money funneled to savings in the past five years.

Goodbye, Parkfest

The proposed budget includes 5 percent expense reductions in all city departments except the library, since cuts there would require staff reductions and fewer hours.

The police and fire departments account for the greatest expenses, $2,486,896 and $1,308,630, respectively, followed by $960,205 for public works. Other departments run $853,929 for the library, to $189,939 for community services.

Under the council's discretionary expenses ($793,210), Guillen included $100,000 for destination marketing and another $108,000 to sign on with the Monterey County Convention and Visitors Bureau.

It also includes the estimated city subsidy of Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance of $366,680, down from $378,796 this year, due to increased rates and expanded coverage to include the mouth of the valley.

Councilman Gerard Rose, a member of the ambulance board, said the costs should be even lower. "I'm optimistic the number Rich has used is way more than it's going to be," he said.

Capital spending in 2006/2007 is "very meager," he said, following the 2005/2006 total that almost hit $1 million. If the economy continues to recover, Guillen said capital spending could increase to $700,000 for the following two years, and some money could be used to replenish capital reserves.

To further cut expenses, Guillen proposed eliminating Parkfest, the summer concerts in Devendorf Park on Fridays, for a savings of $4,250. He also reported liability and workers compensation insurance costs could decrease.

Most of the public comments pertained to library hours, which were sharply reduced in July 2004. The main branch is closed Sundays and opens later on other days, and the children's branch near Devendorf Park is closed half the week. Parents wish their kids could read in the park branch on weekends, and Carmel's older residents would like access earlier in the day, according to several speakers.

"We're aware of your need to prioritize funds, and we appreciate the difficulty, but we would like to point out that besides serving as a cultural center for the community, access to the library helps to improve the quality of the educational system," commented library board member Martha Mosher.

Rose said he would like to know how much it would cost to restore the library hours.

The mayor, members of council and the public may submit budget-related questions to Guillen until May 31, which will allow staff adequate time to research and answer them by June 7. The council will discuss the proposed budget at a special meeting June 13, and another budget meeting is scheduled for June 22. The spending plan must be adopted by July 1.

HOUSES ARE NOT STOCK CERTIFICATES!

Wall Street analysts often have odd things to say about real estate. The market, they may say, is in a "bubble." The market, they may claim, faces an imminent "crash."

Trouble is, these are primarily stock market terms, and they don't fit the world of real estate particularly well. For example, even though we have seen seasons in which real estate prices adjusted downward, it would be a case of journalistic excess to call that a "crash."

There is one primary reason for this. No matter what happens to the market, people still need a place to live. No matter how slow or weird the market becomes, therefore, people are still buying and selling homes.

A share of stock, on the other hand, or a bar of gold bullion or a bond or a future delivery of pork bellies are all things that we really have no intrinsic need for in our lives. We can't live in them. We can't make things with them. At best, they are certificates that we can hang on our wall, like the pop star's poster in a teenager's room.

A home, though, provides for many of our most basic needs. That makes it a remarkable investment, both for those living in it and for investors renting it out. Over time, a home is bound to prove as valuable as any of a society's most valued commodities. It's where we live, after all. Yes on A

IT'S CERTAINLY true that the government wastes plenty of money.

Have you seen those picketers who have camped at various spots around the Peninsula for almost a year? The carpenters' union is after one local company for failing to pay the government-designated "prevailing wage" to workers on its non-government jobs.

Now, the concept of an official "prevailing wage" was invented to make sure government workers — wherever their jobs took them — got at least as much as comparable workers in the local private sector.

But the thing has spiralled out of control to the point where, in Monterey County anyway, union carpenters are demanding to get the same lofty wages on private jobs as they get from the government!

Multiply that phenomenon by a zillion and you'll begin to understand why government spending is out of control. So we sympathize with local taxpayer advocates who say there is plenty of money to fix Monterey County's highways without raising taxes.

Also, as the local Libertarian Party pointed out, "the nation's wealth is created in the private sector; the more funds are moved from the private sector to the government, the less wealth is created for use by anyone — including the government." How true.

Unfortunately, repairing local roads can't wait for a complete makeover of the way things are done in Salinas, Sacramento and Washington. Nor is a sudden flood of state and federal tax dollars going to hit the area. If the people of Monterey County want improvements to Holman Highway as it snakes up the hill toward CHOMP, to Highway 101 where afternoon traffic leaving the Peninsula is often at a standstill, to the deathtrap Highway 156 from Castroville to Prunedale, or to the even worse deathtrap that would be eliminated by building the Highway 101 Prunedale bypass, they have to be willing to pay for these improvements themselves. Measure A would increase local sales taxes by one-half cent for the next 14 years. Spending that money will definitely be worth it. Please vote Yes on Measure A.

Snide editorial remark?

Dear Editor,

The article last week (May 19) on trees and the Forest and Beach Department was, for the most part, good to read. Mary Brownfield's articles often are well written and even handed. To begin what was otherwise a straight news article, however, with what could be easily interpreted as a snide editorial remark was inappropriate. Some readers believe whatever they read in The Pine Cone. It is wrong for any paper to mislead readers by including material in a news article, whether advertently or inadvertently, that could be thought more appropriate in clearly designated articles of opinion or editorials. It is, of course, not "common knowledge," as the article asserts, that "trees are more important than people in Carmel by the Sea." It is unlikely that anyone believes that. I doubt that even Pine Cone staffers really think that residents believe trees are more important than people. Our trees are an integral part of what defines Carmel, of course, and are quite important to most of the people, who live here full time (it is one of the major reasons that people move to Carmel after all), but that is entirely different from what you said in the opening sentence of the article. As you know, some readers and I believe that includes both people, who agree and disagree with the weekly's editorial positions, do think the Pine Cone should restrict its editorializing to the editorial and opinion pages and should clearly separate factual pieces from opinion pieces. I think every news publication whether a local weekly or national daily should strive to be as rigorous as possible about this. I urge The Pine Cone, therefore, to be careful to keep editorials and opinions on the proper clearly defined pages and to reserve the other con-

'Measure A must be defeated'

Dear Editor:

Every time a government agency tries to pickpocket taxpayers, they have hundreds of thousands of dollars at their fingertips. On the other side, anti-tax organizations have few resources to fight a plethora of tax increases. Measure A is no different except that the government no longer needs to get contributions from the private sector. They can now simply grab taxpayer's money to promote their taxing scheme. TAMC has already spent over $100,000 of public funds to get taxpayers to pay more in sale taxes. Many argue that under Stanson v. Mott, this is illegal.

Consider the facts. TAMC recently mailed out their full-color annual report to every resident of Monterey County. Only one problem; they have never mailed out an "annual" report in their 13-year history; nor were there any financial statements concerning TAMC's performance. Next, TAMC produced a $29,000 video tape showing promenading and salivating politicians in a political ritual to get taxpayers to bleed more money to yet another mismanaged government agency.

Measure A must be defeated to show politicians and their ilk that they cannot and should not use our money against us.

Firefighters take LAFCO to court

VALLEY VOLUNTEERS, Inc., the group of firefighters that unsuccessfully attempted to divide the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District this year, has asked the Monterey County Superior Court to intervene.

According to documents filed April 25, the Local Agency Formation Commission acted "in excess of its statutory power" when it voted to reverse its Jan. 9 decision granting the group's petition for detachment. Williams Sims, Mark Spindler, Sharon Waller and the Valley Volunteers believe LAFCO "must, as a matter of law, implement its Jan. 9, 2006, decision."

Discontented with the management of the CVFPD, the valley group gathered signatures of registered voters and took its petition to LAFCO last year to request the agency "restore the quality of service and fiscal responsibility that existed prior to [the fire district's] consolidation in 2000."

In subsequent hearings, LAFCO voted to proceed with the reorganization, then to deny it. In December, LAFCO received a request to reconsider its denial, and it voted for the reconsideration in January. In February, members adopted a resolution denying the petition. The plaintiffs allege that final vote violated the law.

Big Sur Library's annual fundraiser

THE BIG Sur Library will host its 18th annual fundraising used book sale May 27-29 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

Beginning Saturday, book lovers can literally wade through thousands of second hand treasures, which will be displayed on tables outside the library.

Proceeds from the sale benefit Big Sur Friends of the Library, a non-profit library auxiliary group.

"Boxes of books keep coming in," explained librarian Eby Wold. "The response has been tremendous."

A corresponding bake sale will benefit the Big Sur Grange Hall.

The library is located on Highway 1 and adjacent to the Ripplewood Resort and Cafe, about 24 miles south of Carmel.

Dorothy Loleta Wright ~ 1909-2006

Long time Carmel resident Dorothy Loleta Wright departed this life May 15, 2006. Born in 1909 to Jacob Henry and Mary Jane Wright, descendants of California's earliest pioneers, the eldest daughter of seven children. She graduated from Selma Union High School, obtained her BA from Fresno State University and her MA from University of California at Berkeley. She served her country in World War II as a Marine Corp. Major. Following her discharge, she joined the staff of Carmel High School, later becoming Vice Principle. Carpentry and fishing were her joys. She designed and built (herself) three houses, two in Carmel and one at the mouth of Carmel Valley. During retirement she spent her summers fishing near her Feather River cabin.

She is survived by her sister Jean Elizabeth Stallings of Fresno, CA and her many nieces, nephews, great-nieces and great-nephews who called her Aunt Dorothy and La La with great affection.

Memorial services will be held at San Joaquin Gardens Fellowship Hall at 5555 N. Fresno Street, Fresno on May 26 at 10:30 a.m. Flowers may be sent to San Joaquin Gardens Fellowship Hall.

THE PERFECT CARMEL GET-A-WAY

Just a short stroll down the John Powers walking path to the white sands of Carmel Beach or an easy loop up to town, and your favorite restaurant, sits this charming, like new, Carmel Cottage. Excellent quality and finishes combine with an open floor plan, vaulted ceilings, stone fireplaces, an inviting south facing deck off the kitchen and living room, and a wonderful master suite combine to make this 3 bedroom 2 bath cottage the perfect Carmel get a way! Price Reduced $1,895,000.

SEEING IS BELIEVING

This spacious Carmel home offers open beamed ceilings, oak and tile floors, living room view deck and a private atrium with spa. On a large corner lot, this 3000+ sq. ft. 4 bedroom, 3.5 bath home has a separate guest unit with bath. All this with a sunny southern exposure for a postcard view over the tiled roof of the Carmel Mission to the lights of Carmel Meadows, the Santa Lucia mountains and even a peek of Pt. Lobos and the Carmel Bay. $2,495,000.

"Carmel Legends"

Peek, Glimpse, View and Vista Explained
"Part 2"

Peeks" and "glimpses" are often confused, and it is here that the advice of a seasoned sea-watcher becomes most important. but we can offer some guidance:

a.) A "Peek" requires some overt action by the viewer. It may mean standing on a chair, or hanging out the window, or climbing a tree. A peek is better than nothing, much better, but it must be taken. It is never given.

b.) A "Glimpse" is less athletic. It depends not so much on the viewer's action, but on the action of other objects. For example, a sustained 30-knot north wind may bend the trees in such fashion that a glimpse is afforded.

c.) Briefly, then a glimpse is impermanent. Conditions must be right for it to happen. A peek is always there, but you must do something to catch it.

credit cards somewhere between Bernardus Lodge, Pebble Beach and the Carmel area.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A UPS driver found a lost juvenile male wandering the streets of Carmel. UPS driver transported the juvenile male to CPD where contact was made with the juvenile's parent. The juvenile male stated that he wandered away from home with the intention of visiting a friend nearby. The juvenile male became disoriented and could not find his way to the friend's residence or back to his home. The parent responded to CPD and was reunited with his son.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Reporting party lost her cane in the business area near Ocean Avenue sometime yesterday.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Two subjects entered the reporting party's business on San Carlos Street and asked questions which the RP felt were inappropriate and suspicious. The subjects asked for the most expensive item, time they close and how many employees were working. She requested a close patrol.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Party reported parking her vehicle in the City of Carmel today. Upon returning to her vehicle, she noticed it had been struck and damaged. No note or suspect information available. Report for insurance purposes only.

SUNDAY, MAY 14

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of battery on a person on Lincoln Street.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine and ambulance responded to a medical emergency on Guadalupe Street. Engine and ambulance arrived on scene and found an elderly female lying on the floor of her residence. The patient was possibly ETOH (intoxicated) and had an unwitnessed fall. Crews examined the patient, placed her on oxygen and in c-spine precautions. Ambulance transported the patient to CHOMP.

Big Sur: At about 1344 hours, the Monterey County Sheriff's Office Search and Rescue Team was called out to assist in transporting the victim of a medical emergency from the Soberanes Trail. The victim, a 75-year-old male, had suffered heat exhaustion and fatigue while hiking on the trail. He was stabilized by fire and ambulance personnel on the trail. The victim was approximately one-and-a-half miles from Highway 1. The SAR team, California Department of Forestry personnel and state park rangers carried the victim to Highway 1, where he was transported to CHOMP for treatment and evaluation.

Carmel Valley: Victim discovered that an unknown person attempted to gain access to his Porsche Boxster. The unknown suspect tore the cloth roof of victim's Porsche while it was parked on Valley Greens Drive. Approximate value of the damage is $3,000. No property was stolen.

gave the coastal expanse (and, in the Monterey Peninsula, Monterey rises out of the fog) a sort of like-paradise, beckoning those ready to man the gates to a luxurious life they were meant to have, captivated by the mystery of the canyon, the romance of the madman, the makes-of-the-resless sea, and the soft embrace with the landscape. It is the kind of natural drama that has seduced poets and magicians, home to all the secret dreams and ambitions, the means of this exclusive paradise. Monterey means, in other words, the dream and the quest. It means privacy and exclusivity, the house of the aristocrat, a dream of an island and an island, a means of escape, a means of social fitness. Membership: Starting price is $1,500 a year. From there it depends on your dreams, but those who want it all, Monterey means more.

a knife to his throat. He was transported to Natividad Medical Center for evaluation.

Carmel Valley: Deputies responded to a report of a physical domestic dispute in progress. Suspect was subsequently arrested for domestic violence and child abuse.

MONDAY, MAY 15

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A child was bitten while attempting to pet a dog on Torres Street.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Reporting party stated that they had an unwanted subject in the facility on Lincoln Street. Eventually the subject left the premises and was contacted by officers. The subject was interviewed and warned.

TUESDAY, MAY 16

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Reporting party stated that she found a subject wandering about the Monte Verde Street area who appeared to be disoriented. The subject was identified and returned to her San Antonio Street residence and her husband was advised. No further action.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of found property on Mission Street.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Dog was found on Serra near Camino del Monte which is located in the county's jurisdiction. Reporting party found dog and brought it to Carmel P.D. Dog owner was subsequently contacted. Fees were paid, and dog was returned.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Traffic collision on San Carlos Street causing injury.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Reporting party stated that another motorist who works at a local business collided with the RP's parked vehicle. All parties involved agreed to an informational exchange.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female subject was contacted for panhandling in front of the market at Junipero and Sixth. Subject warned and said she would no longer bother customers entering or leaving the store. Female subject walked over to an adjacent store and was again bothering customers for money at 1721 hours. Owner of both properties contacted the subject and told her that she was no longer welcome on the private property of either store. Female subject was advised, in the presence of the police, that if she were to return to the property, she would be placed under citizen's arrest for trespassing. Female subject left the area.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female subject was following around guests at a hotel which is private property at 2001 hours. She had no legal reason to be on the premises. Management advised they did not want to have her on the property and would be willing to press charges. The female subject was advised that if she stayed or returned to the hotel property she would be arrested for trespassing. Female subject left the area.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Officer responded to a report of a trespasser at a local motel on Ocean Avenue at 2021 hours. The management reported that her customers were complaining about a female adult who was following them around and scaring them. Management requested that the female adult be contacted and told she was not to come on their property. Female was contacted and given a warning. She was advised that if she returned, charges could be filed.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject report a female was following them around the business area at 2045 hours. The female said nothing; however, they did not like her so close to them.

This is an ongoing problem with the transient female. Subject contacted and advised to stop following people.

POLICE LOG

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A visiting tourist contacted Carmel P.D. after finding an item of jewelry on the sidewalk near a local restaurant on Ocean Avenue.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Party came in the station to report his mother dropped him off at the youth center at 1630 and was due to pick him up at 1730 but hadn't arrived as of 1930. He called his father to pick him up and then they came to the station to request an officer's assistance. The mother's vehicle was located at Mission and Fourth Avenue. Additionally, her purse at San Carlos and Fifth Avenue. Officer went to retrieve the purse and then found the mother sitting on the sidewalk near the gas station. She had been drinking and was unable to safely drive a vehicle, so she was transported to the station in order to go home in a cab. The reporting party stayed with his father for the night.

Sixth. Fire engine on scene. Crews applied absorbent and awaited tow truck arrival for an early model car that was leaking fuel from the gas tank. As the leak could not be stopped, the vehicle was towed from the scene for repairs by the owner.

Carmel Valley: Child protective services cross-report of alleged abuse/neglect of minor children related to emotional abuse and unsafe living conditions. Case continues.

FRIDAY, MAY 19

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Reporting party reported a suspicious subject initially purchased items, left and returned several times and walked around inside as if he was casing the store on Junipero Street. Owner requested that the subject be advised to leave the property and not return. Subject was contacted, field interviewed and advised that he was not allowed on the property anymore. Subject stated that he understood and moved on.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Reporting party reported that her pajamas had been stolen from her hotel room on Torres Street. Pajamas later found between bed sheets and returned to owner.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fire engine was dispatched to a request for automatic aid to a possible structure fire on Carmel Rancho Lane, but was canceled.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Reporting party came to station to report losing her digital camera. RP said she does not remember the exact cross street where her vehicle was parked; however, she said it was near the residential area near the beach. RP wished to make the report in the event someone located the camera.
